

Your guide through the Construction Process

Over recent years the construction industry has become more complex and sophisticated and many organisations now seek independent specialist advice to ensure their projects are successful. The essential ingredient for success is good teamwork supported by good communication. This involves selecting the most appropriate consultants and contractors and controlling their input with an emphasis on time, cost and quality.

Ownership of Project

CRGP allocates a director to every commission to ensure that we take responsibility for delivering the project. We will work in partnership with the consultants and contractors to make certain that the objectives are identified, risks assessed and the most appropriate strategy identified for success.

Importance of the individual

To achieve your objectives it is necessary for us to employ the right people and create the correct environment for success. We recognise the importance of our staff, encouraging growth from within. This is confirmed by our Investors in People award.

Inter-Discipline approach

CRGP offers a comprehensive service to clients including project management, cost and design consultancy. Each of our project managers is able to draw on this expertise to provide a high standard of service. Our combined knowledge base provides technical experience and commercial awareness
